Canada Proud of 'Dream Come True'

In the June 15 issue, the American publication "Newsweek" gives an early account of Canada's participation in the Normandy invasion. Though the article is reproduced late in the day, with many heroic developments since the writing, the article reflects the American view of the first phase of Canadian action. In part, the report says:

"Canada came of military age on D day. Ships of the R.C.N. carried men of the Canadian army, landed the first assault waves and their reinforcements, and then commenced a sleepless period of day and night ferry service to the beachheads. Above, the men of the R.C.A.F. held the skies."

"It was news that an all-Canadian team had been formed in England to strike its own blow: that from Canada's 11,500,000 citizens had been drawn ground, sea and air forces in sufficient strength to earn a distinct place in the greatest assault in history."

The Dream

"Since Dunkerque, since the Battle of Britain (which Canadian fighter pilots helped to win), and especially since the bloody experience of Dieppe, the Canadian army had grimly awaited the invasion. For a time there had been hope that a full and integrated Canadian army could be employed, a dream abandoned in favor of splitting the impatient army and sending part of it to Italy and Sicily. But the dream that came true on D day had seemed too much to expect."

"For one thing, the Canadian navy (fifteen ships in September 1939, and now over 700, including 250 combat ships) had been running the North Atlantic convoys for so long that Canadians did not think of it as an assault force. And without the navy there could be no combined Canadian assault."

"Actually, since January all three chiefs of staff in Ottawa had gone to London to correlate plans. Lt. Gen. Kenneth Stuart, Vice Admiral Nelles, Air Marshal Broadbent had been planning together, and with Allied commanders to bring off the seeming miracle."

The Attack

"The Canadians were in the middle of H. hour. They had crossed the channel between the mass of American and British ships while the Normandy coast was being plastered by shells from battleships, cruisers, destroyers. The first waves of Canadians got ashore from small landing craft. Other waves followed quickly. Less than three hours later they had secured the beachhead midway between Le Havre and Cherbourg, and after stiff coastal fighting the troops had shoved inland. In the first 48 hours the Canadians had captured a dozen towns, taken more than 600 prisoners, stopped a small enemy tank force outside Caen, then joined the British in repeated attacks on Caen. The Third Division was identified as one of the units in action."

"The navy disclosed that at least three Canadian flotillas of destroyers, frigates, corvettes, mine sweepers and torpedo boats were engaged in landing operations."

"In Canada, the only man who knew the D day secret was Prime Minister King, and no one had a hint of the date."

"Better than any other place in Canada, the port of Halifax understood the scope of invasion. Since 1939 Halifax had seen the troops leave for overseas, watched great convoys pull away with always-increasing war supplies. And this spring Halifax had not failed to note a new drive and intensity. Waterfront authorities had once called on businessmen, students, industrial workers and servicemen to help handle cargoes, and in the pre-invasion period every shipping tonnage record for the port had been broken. But even the people of Halifax had hardly dared hope that enough had been sent to England to equip a combined all-Canadian force."

Planning 150,000 Acre Co-Op Farm

Saskatchewan is well advanced in cooperative enterprises and is taking a further step by organizing a giant cooperative farm. An application for incorporation of this farm has been received by B. N. Arnsper, registrar of cooperative association. The application was signed by farmers of the Mildred and Estelle Valley rural municipalities, about 85 miles southwest of Saskatoon.

If this project goes through it will be the first of this nature in Canada. It will cover about 150,000 acres or about 235 square miles of arable and pasture land. It is thought that this may probably be the largest farm in the world, though some of the collectivized farms in Russia may compare with it.

If the application is granted it will be a 100% cooperative venture, with all farmers in the area joining in the scheme. To date no cooperative farm has been developed except for operation of machinery or such purposes. But Saskatchewan has 1,000 cooperative organizations in operation. There were 2,313 places of business in 1943, with 250,846 members. All is under government supervision.

Another cooperative farm project is being suggested at Two Rivers, B.C.

The next annual tournament of the Foothills Golfers' Assn. will be held at Claresholm in 1945.

A hearty vote of thanks goes to the ladies of the Red Cross who served lunch at the booth on the grounds.

Few Changes in Federal Taxation

Compulsory Savings part of Income Tax Ceases from July 1. Tariffs on Farm Implements off. No Tax Increases.

In Finance Minister Ilsley's announcement of budget changes, there was little startling. No tax increases have been imposed. The compulsory savings requirements will be suspended as from July 1. This is because too many viewed compulsory savings as tax, not savings, and some cases of hardship were found to exist by the imposition.

The cash requirements of Canada will be six billion, or 200 million more than last year.

All tariffs on farm machinery and 10% war exchange tax will be removed.

Large expenses in most active phase of the war will increase cash requirements.

Need for voluntary savings will be greater than ever owing to suspension of compulsory savings.

Business firms may borrow on security of the refundable portion of the excess profits and corporation tax.

Business concerns will be granted double depreciation on new capital investment after a certain date.

Income tax receipts for the past year were $813,000,000 an increase of 52% from 1942-43.

New records in sale of Victory bonds may be necessary.

Successful maintenance of price control during period of fighting and readjustment will be even more important than in the past.

There are few changes of any importance to the average, or small income, person. The elimination of compulsory savings is expected to increase purchase of Victory bonds.

Farmers are particularly interested in the abolition of tariffs on American-made machinery and removal of the 10% foreign exchange tax on agricultural implements. Tractors already have free entry to Canada, and the benefit of tariff removal from other imported machinery will be better known as further details come out.

This move in the matter of tariffs in war years is taken to indicate a further trend of freer trade with U.S. after the war.

In respect to income tax, a single person with no dependents with an income of $1500 will pay an annual tax of $246, instead of the $365 which he paid previously. A married man with two children and income of $2000, will only pay tax of $106 instead of the previous $212.

Relatives who are in-laws may now qualify as dependent relatives for income tax purposes.

SUNLIT MILK

Sunlight on a milk bottle can steal in an hour 40 per cent and in three hours 72 per cent of the vitamin B2 in milk, shows a chemical study made by Dr. Walter J. Peterson, of M. H. H. and A. O. Shaw at the Experimental Station of North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering. Vitamin B2 or riboflavin is an essential in the diet. The total loss of riboflavin in 100 bottles of milk would be sufficient to provide a daily requirement of B2 for 150,000 people. Moral: Tell the milk man to leave bottles in the shade.

A hog takes about 550 pounds of water plus feed to produce 100 lbs. of pork. Cows need 3 1/2 times more water than feed. A flock of 100 hens would drink 12 tons of water annually.

PURDY-KRAUSE

Decorated with pink and white peonies and ferns, Jehovah Lutheran Church was the scene of a pretty wedding when Gertrude Margaret, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Krause of Vulcan, became the bride of L.A.C. Denzil Gilbert Purdy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sternes Purdy, of Bellevue, Alta.

The Misses Margaret and Lillian Horne, as bridesmaids, were gownned in pale rose and pale blue chiffon and also carried Colonial bouquets.

The best man was Cpl. Wesley Hamilton, R.C.A., of Brandon, Man.

Lightning Kills 3 Mares, 3 Colts

The Cayley district had a terrific downpour of rain on June 20, with a two-inch fall at some points. There was also a fierce electrical storm. The CC Hutterian colony lost three mares and three colts from a bolt of lightning. They were out in open pasture, which seems to cast doubt on the assertion that the safest place to be in an electrical storm is out in the middle of a field. It may be safest, but at that it isn't safe.

COMING ELECTIONS

A turbulent year looms ahead, not only in the war world, but in the internal life of Canada. Federal and provincial elections are in prospect, and at the very thought of all the heat and bombast which is pending, a great weariness descends upon the spirit of the average man.

Why is it that election campaigns seem to change the attitude of man to man? Tried and true friends are estranged over the most trivial political differences. Some one has said that the battle of the ballot seems just as hate-provoking and barbaric as the clash and conflict of real war. And another comment is that elections seem even dirtier and less admirable than war. Opposing parties, denied the outlet of sword and bullet in their campaign, call upon verbal invective of the most inflammatory nature to describe motives and principles of those who do not agree with them. Epithets bandied about are as violent as any terms used to describe Hitler.

Yet to give party leaders and the majority of supporters their just due, all are fellow-Canadians earnestly and devotedly concerned with the future of Canada, differing perhaps in methods of attaining a given objective, but all sincerely aiming at the ideal of a happy, prosperous and united country. And amongst some of the parties there seems so little difference in method as to make their pronouncements almost indistinguishable.

But it is feared that as the months roll by, the air will be filled with mounting fury of language, growing ever louder and more deafening. Neighbors will re-evaluate each other, not on the basis of all the fine, dependable virtues that endure, but over some little divergence of political opinion on the best way to save Canada.

In prospect and in retrospect, it all seems childish and lacking in dignity. It is only during the heat of campaigns that we lose our sense of proportion. It would be a refreshing precedent if leaders and their vocal followers would exercise moderation and honesty in their attacks. Who knows but they might win more friends and influence more people if they appealed more to commonsense and less to emotion and prejudice? It is quite possible to present principles and policies of one's own side without reflecting on the honor and loyalty of those who take opposing views. After all the listening and reading public is not completely gullible, and little is gained by overstatement and wholesale condemnation.

It must be said for the heads of opposing parties in the federal field of Canada, that they rarely resort to the lower levels of exaggeration and abuse. As a rule they restrict themselves to the objective view and to essential principles. It is amongst the lesser lights, the overenthusiastic regional spellbinders, that the flames of prejudice are fanned by intemperate speeches. Freedom of speech is one of our cherished privileges, but it should be held subservient to the principles of truth and honesty in all public utterances. Great damage to national life and to unity can result from half-truths and unworthy implications.

The General has put his finger on the heart of the matter. A central argument of the Nazis has been that of racial superiority. Their tramping feet and barking guns have denied the brotherhood of man as well as man's freedom and equality. So when men of General Eisenhower's command act as brothers, not as nationals, they are denying the arrogant Nazi assertions and affirming the fundamentals of the Christian religion, and have given tangible expression to the highest aspirations of democracy, which is self-government under God. Such, truly, is the big story of the invasion.

THE GREAT STORY

(From Christian Science Monitor)

"What will be the big story of the Invasion?" a reporter asked General Eisenhower. Said the General: "The great story that will come out of the operations will be something like this—It will be the story of a U.S. escort plane flying protection to a British Warship which is giving support to Canadian soldiers. That or any other combination of the three, and if every man in a particular action has forgotten that he is American, or British, or Canadian, and fights as if they are all brothers, as they are, and in the same cause, that ority is now prosecuting two of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who accidentally shot a deserter. Ottawa, on occasion, seems willing to allow Quebec to usurp its right of eminent domain.

If the Parliament at Ottawa was free and independent, it would take steps to protect its members from being penalized by a provincial authority for statements made in the Senate. That same provincial author-

SERMONETTE

You have repeated these words: "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven" (Matt. 6:10). Have you brought condemnation upon yourself by asking God to bring His kingdom on earth and at the same time refusing to co-operate with Him in its preparation? Have you not yet become a loyal citizen of heaven's Kingdom, and living here not doing His will? If you are not a citizen of heaven, nor doing His will, you are asking Him to bring in a kingdom and a system which means the ousting of the one you now belong to. If God would answer your prayer He would have to put you out along with the kingdom you serve.

Why not declare your allegiance to the King of heaven and begin doing His will, for some day He is going to answer the prayer He has taught us to pray. Where will you stand in that day?

Hon. Solon Low, now in Ottawa, expects to refund the Alberta provincial debt at an average rate of 3.6%. He will do most of his negotiation for refunding at Toronto. He said he felt that Alberta had a moral obligation to restore its bonds to par value.

Dr. La Violette, engaged in collecting information on Japanese evacuees says that Canadians will be judged in the post-war period by the manner in which they behave to Japanese born in Canada. He said that the Atlantic Charter and other allied treaties will make it impossible for the government to treat Japanese other than Canadian citizens. He is also making a study of Jap treatment in U.S.A.

Business at the board meeting of Foothills Health division held on Wednesday in High River covered the inclusion of Arrowwood and Milo in the division; reports from Miss Stewart; discussion of nutritional services for the district; venereal disease campaign, and other matters relating to the health of this area.

The matter of services for the villages of Milo and Arrowwood was first brought up, and members were informed that Miss Stewart and Mr. Mooney had already visited these points and given some service. Dr. Somerville was of the opinion that these villages should have been definitely included in the district before service had been given. But a motion was carried that they be included when the request is received. The secretary stated that Milo had already made application, and the cheque for assessment was received.

Discussion followed on the advisability of fixing the budget at $12,000, although the district may not require this full sum, without the services of a medical officer. This however can be adjusted by dropping quarterly payments when funds justify doing so. It was decided to fix the budget at $12,000, which will mean a per capita basis of 30 cents.

Work of Nurses

Miss Stewart, in presenting her report, said that 42 schools had been visited with 11 to visit before the term closes. She reported that a number of corrections had been made amongst school children, as advised after examinations, but not as many as last year, particularly in dental care. This was due no doubt to the scarcity of dentists. She stated that the examining staff had found a number of vision defects, and where it is possible, the nurses visit the parents to recommend this attention. Communicable diseases and scarlet fever are now well under control, though recently there have been a number of cases of measles. Immunization work, commenced in the past spring, has been completed. Health education has been carried on, and recently considerable publicity has been given to films on venereal diseases. Most areas, including many high schools, have seen these films, and adults have been encouraged to attend. Fifteen new schools are included in the health district as a result of extended boundaries. The staff recently went to Arrowwood in connection with a clinic and 21 people attended. There may be difficulty in respect to service, due to the long distances to be travelled to outlying areas. Later, in this connection, the board discussed planning trips with a view to saving gas to as great an extent as possible.

Nutritional Campaign

Miss Stewart also spoke in reference to the visit of Miss Hogg to the district in connection with a nutritional campaign. It was hoped to have further assistance from Miss Hogg, who is from the Dept. of Health. Miss Stewart also brought up the matter of vitamin tablets for use of school children during winter months. These cost $3.60 per thousand. Out of this matter of vitamins, the board went into discussion. Recognizing the value of vitamins, and the beneficial results likely to be realized, the question was also raised as to whether maximum result is being obtained from the foods which are available to all, and which do contain most of the required vitamins if properly prepared. To assure that housekeepers be more fully informed on the best foods for different needs, and the best means of preparation to retain the necessary vitamins, it was agreed that the services of an expert in dietetics would be most valuable to the district. The board went on record as applying to the government in the hope that the Foothills district would be one of the first districts to get a nutritional expert after the war.

Turner Valley Report

Miss Jean Cramer of the Turner Valley school district, reported school examinations finished, and a number of home visits and baby clinics. In connection with the venereal disease campaign there had been 110 Wasserman tests. At the showing of films in this campaign there were 253 students and 100 adults present, and 400 pamphlets had been distributed.

Sanitary Report

J. C. Mooney, sanitary inspector, reported that one of the big problems is the labor situation as affecting dairymen, particularly at Black Diamond where the difficulty of getting adequate help creates the possibility of a part of the milk supply being cut off. He referred also to the garbage situation at Turner Valley where it has been impossible to find anyone to handle the matter. It was suggested that this might be taken up with Mr. Potts, Dep. of Municipal Affairs, and administrator for that area. Reference was also made to sanitary conditions at Milo and Arrowwood, and the advisability of taking care of Milo, Arrowwood and Vulcan in one trip if possible, to conserve gas.

Representatives from Turner Valley, Blackie, Okotoks, M.D. of Blackie, M.D. of Vulcan, town of Vulcan, were present; also Dr. Somerville from Dept. of Health, Dr. McNichol from High River, and F. L. Watt, secretary.

In 23 days of fighting in Normandy, 28,849 Germans had been captured.

Bob Edwards "Eye Opener"

Bob Edwards views the gloomy scene of 1918-1919. These public men of highest personal honor! Those dubious days of prohibition, a noble experiment that turned sour.

After one crosses the roaring forties of one's life, one's notion of real excitement is a general election. The monotony of the butchery of the front is no doubt making the devil yawn.

Embarrassing Moments

The parson, still on the under side of forty, was driving in the country when he overtook a young woman. He recognized her as the maid of all work on a farm which he would pass, so he pulled up and offered her a lift. Mary gladly accepted his offer and they chatted pleasantly all the way to the farm.

"Thank you, sir," she said as she got down.

"Don't mention it, Mary. Don't mention it," he told her politely.

"All right, I won't," whispered Mary.

He had been calling on her twice a week for six months but had not proposed. He was a wise young man and did not think it necessary. "Ethel," he said, as they were taking a stroll one evening. "I am going to ask you an important question."

"O George," she exclaimed, "this is so sudden."

"What I want to know is this," he interrupted. "what date have you and your mother set for our wedding?"

High Personal Honor

These politicians are all deucedly likable fellows, and of the highest personal honor. But do they ever live up to their promises. Take this young Mackenzie King, a Liberal leader of admittedly highest personal honor, and we are all courteously accepting in good faith his promise to turn over to the prairie provinces their natural resources, if he should ever be made premier. But Borden made precisely the same promise before attaining office, and, like booby, we all thought he meant it, and gave him our votes on the strength of it. This promise was never kept. And yet Borden is also a man of the highest personal honor. How do you account for it?

Doesn't Like Buttons

We have received a button with the legend: "I have bought my Victory bond." This sort of thing is in shockingly bad taste and those responsible for doing it are not playing fair. There are thousands of men and women in this city who would be only too glad to buy a Victory bond if they had the price, it being admittedly a gilt-edged investment. But why should their inability to do so be advertised to their fellows by the conspicuous absence from their coat of a dinky little button?

Head Shaking Over Prohibition

Our views on prohibition have undergone considerable change since the memorable days when we worked so hard in favor of it. The whole thing has proved a farce. It was but true enough that the elimination of the bar has brought good results by removing temptation from the path of the wage-earners with families who had no moral right to divert their money from proper domestic channels. But in other circles the damage wrought by so-called prohibition has been somewhat fierce.

We have kept hammering away at these booze parties in the homes for a long time now, with no tangible results outside of a knowing wink and smile from the cognoscenti. Everybody knows of the disgraceful orgies pulled off nightly in private homes along our quiet avenues which look so innocent and bland during the day. They form a favorite subject of cynical conversation amongst the men during office hours. If the women who participate in these debauches only knew how lightly their names are bandied about amongst the men downtown they would surely pause to do a little calm reflecting for their own sakes.

PERTINENT TOPICS

DISCUSSED BY H.C.

The Senate of Canada is worth continuing as an instrument of legislation and government, if it did nothing else than provide a sanctuary and sounding board for Mr. Bouchard who made use of it to tell Canada about the agencies, public or secret, that operate to make Quebec a separatist province inimical to British connection. Only a short time ago he was considered the best man to select for the big job of managing the Quebec Hydro-Electric Commission and Power Properties appropriated by the legislature of which he had been a member. After that speech Mr. Duplessis, ex-premier and leader of the Union Nationale party, demanded his head and Premier Godbout weakly surrendered, thus showing that speech can be free enough provided it does not utter unpalatable truths.

The fact is that Quebec is as fanatical about isolationism as Italy was of Fascism or as Germany was and is of Nazism, and the same repressive means are used to make the ideology unanimous. For years the Liberal party was the sole beneficiary of that state of mind, until Conservative leaders, like Duplessis, found they had to raise the ante if they were to get anywhere. They became Nationalists and won out for a season.

The strife between the two parties goes on as fiercely as if their objectives were different, and now another party Bloc Populaire, sees a chance to gain provincial supremacy by outbidding the other two. They are all on the same road and unite only to ostracize and persecute any man independent—and courageous enough to speak out in meeting and disclose what their common object is. In this too, they follow Nazi technique. They accuse the Federal government of suppressing liberty of speech, in the case of Mayor Bourdeau of Montreal; but would themselves have no compunctions about silencing Mr. Bouchard, who said nothing that could be considered subversive or seditious.

It beats all, how bold the پرو Germans in the United States are and the lengths to which they will go to defy the administration and show their dislike of Great Britain. They carry on their campaign behind a shield of zeal and patriotism for the United States against Japan, but their greatest effort is devoted against their own country in its war against Germany. The McCormick-Patterson papers gloat over the "panic" into which they say the people of Britain were thrown by the pilotless bombing plane; this, although thousands of American soldiers are in England now. No doubt too, they chuckle over, and perhaps help finance the methods by which these people, charged with sedition, are making a mockery of the law and a laughing stock of the courts.

Senator Bouchard's purpose was to help Premier Godbout against the Union Nationale and Bloc Populaire, and certainly of the three parties, Godbout's should be the most acceptable. Even after his dismissal, he put in a plea for support of the ministry that treated him so scurvily. That the Premier had to do so, is all the proof necessary to show that what the Senator said is true and that the mis-education of that province has built up a Frankenstein. So strong is the prejudice, Godbout, for political reasons, had to follow the extremists if he would be their leader. Not one of Bouchard's critics has denied that the history textbooks of that province have, for many years, served to create anti-British sentiment there. He admits that he, himself, was similarly influenced, until later on he came in contact with English people. That the educational system generally of that province, is not what it should be, was admitted by Premier Godbout and his Minister of Education when introducing a bill to enlarge the teaching of English in primary and secondary schools. They disclosed that their province was away behind the others in the matter of education. To damn him for time and eternity, they say that Bouchard is a Free Thinker, but it is only this year he was made a Senator and chairman of the Quebec Hydro-Electric Commission. He must have been a free thinker too when he was elected a member of the Legislature and made Minister of Roads in the Godbout ministry. It's a wonder this wasn't found out before and used against him by his political enemies for it is a lethal weapon.

Since racial prejudices can no longer be counted upon to hold Quebec for the Federal Liberals, their strategists have decided to try another system—the old and trusted method of purchase by public money. Family allowances running up to $250,000,000 a year are the bait, and as Quebec specializes in larger families, the lion's share will be distributed there though most of it will be collected from English sources, which in itself has a political advantage in a province whose school books, according to Senator Bouchard, breed anti-British prejudice.

COVER CROPS CAN

MEAN CHEAP MEAT

Cover crops were originally intended to prevent soil drifting. Later farm experience has shown that this growth can be utilized to advantage as pasture for livestock without seriously reducing its usefulness for prevention of soil drifting.

Most cultivated and wild land pastures have passed their productive stage of development before September 1st. Livestock grazed on such pastures after that date seldom make any increase in weight. Cover crops are then just coming into their most productive stage of development and livestock grazed on the lush forage produced by this crop usually make good gains.

Chemical analyses of samples produced at Lacombe indicate that such forages have a high protein content and would constitute high protein concentrates if harvested and cured as dry feed. This explains why cattle make large gains when grazed on cover crops, even when frozen. It also explains why it is not necessary to provide supplemental feeding when stock is grazing on cover crop and why feeder cattle which have been grazing on cover crop do so well when placed in the winter feed lot at the end of the grazing season.

Cover crops can be used to advantage in areas of light snowfall or where Chinook winds tend to reduce the snow covering. Cattle from such areas are frequently placed on the Christmas market in a finished condition without any supplemental feeding.

Stock men have found that gains made on cover crop are frequently the most economical and the most profitable of those made at any time during the lifetime of the animals for the reason that the forage produced by cover crop is produced for another purpose, to control soil drifting and therefore has no market value unless utilized as pasture. As a consequence, cover crop gains are made at minimum feed cost. Furthermore, the health and thrift of the stock at that season of the year is such that they are able to utilize at maximum efficiency the high quality forage made available to them.

Farmers who use cover crops for finishing their cattle are making a nice profit with prevailing prices. They are also doing a service to the cattle business as a whole by removing a number of cattle from the trade and thus reducing the glut of cattle which usually develops on the market at the close of the pasture season.

SHUR-GAIN News OF THE WEEK

INCREASE EGG PRODUCTION

One of the surest methods of increasing egg production is to take every precaution with the health of each bird. One of these precautions is to be sure you have plenty of water for your flock at this time of year, and it will be helpful in stepping up fall production.

Water is cheap, and hens need plenty of it for vigorous health. Water softens the feed in their crops, aids in carrying feed through the digestive canal, and dilutes the various digestive juices. Failure to give water to the hen, upsets its normal laying function, which in turn throws off her production.

A hen producing from 120 to 130 eggs will consume nearly twenty gallons of water in a year. It is known that a bird will die more quickly from lack of water than any other farm animal. Give your hen plenty of clean, fresh water, and watch EGG PRODUCTION INCREASE.

Naturally with plenty of fresh water, give your hens SHUR-GAIN EGG-MAKER LAYING CONCENTRATE—which has been known to more than DOUBLE egg production in one year, and helps your hens lay all winter long.

SHUR-GAIN EGG-MAKER LAYING CONCENTRATE contains egg making materials. It's low in cost, and easy to mix with your own grains. START USING SHUR-GAIN NOW—FOR PROFIT!

MILO

At a recent meeting of the council of the village of Milo the mill rate was set at 8 mills for municipal purposes and 16 mills for school purposes. It may be that at some later date the advantages of small towns and villages belonging to the enlarged school units will be proven but at the present time there seems to be a greater burden of taxation and a lessening of services.

A feeling of satisfaction prevails in the Milo school. When the War Stamp drive was organized quotas were set for the sum of $20 per month for each of the senior rooms and $16 per month for the junior room. Had this schedule been followed there would have been a total of $224 in stamps sold. The final report showed the contest to have been in force for four months and the stamp sales to have reached $734.

This is the season of the year when disciples of Isaac Walton are in their glory. The first of July sees an exodus of fishermen to brooks, lakes and streams. Their equipment and accoutrements would intimidate an elephant, terrify a tiger, or lure almost anything into captivity, anything that is, except a fish.

We do not like fishing, nor do we like fish. We enjoy them on the table but the sight of a fish, alive or dead, arouses in us no warm response of affection. To us there is nothing more monotonous or discouraging than sitting in the wet grass or standing in a flowing stream, wet to the midriff, trying to gauge the likes or dislikes of a fish. Somehow our spirits are dampened, our optimism banished and our fervor short-lived.

As for the fish themselves, they look upon our efforts with a positive sneer. They fix upon us the baleful gleam of a hard-boiled banker, or the frozen stare of a gargoyle. We have always been thankful that the Creator in His wisdom confined fish to the water. Can you imagine the terror that would be inspired in frail humanity were these cold-blooded ferocious brutes permitted to leave their natural habitat?

We are told by those who make a study of piscatorial matters that a fish knows no love-life. Even in the act of procreation, there is no billing or cooing, no nestling or wooing, no parading or serenading, no flirtation or osculation, just a mere routine to produce more fish. It may be argued that deep in the recesses of the finny mind there must be some impelling motive, some parental instinct, some divine plan that prompts, but since the cannibalistic brutes devour half of their offspring even this supposition is doubtful. Ah, well; each man to his taste and we have no doubt that those who delight in the sport are thankful that we are not numbered among their competitors.

We are not a politician but we are convinced that there is something the matter with the scheme of things. We are hungry for strawberries, and the farms of B.C. are overburdened with the same berries. The berry grower will not or cannot afford to pick his berries because the price ceiling is too low. Therefore the British Columbia breezes waft their berry-scented aroma to us and with that we'll have to be content.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Williams and family have left for a three-week vacation at Gull Lake.

Mrs. Turloch of Brooks is spending a few weeks with her mother, Mrs. George Vennesland.

Mrs. Frank Gilliland is on a month's vacation visiting friends at Vanderhoof, B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Shore and family of Calgary spent a few days at the home of his sister, Mrs. C. L. Beckner.

Mrs. Flora Hooker, formerly of this district, presently of Vernon, B.C., is visiting at the home of Miles Clemens and other friends of the district.

Among those who are vacationing on a fishing trip to British Columbia are C. W. Watt, Clarence Umscheid, Lawrence Monner and George Heatter.

The Milo boys who took part in the men's softball and hardball games at the sports day recently held at Arrowwood were lucky or skilful enough to bring home the bacon in hardball.

We are glad to report that Dave Chambers has recuperated sufficiently from his accident to be able to come home but we understand that he will still be confined to his bed for another six weeks.

A family reunion was held at the home of Mrs. Ruth Beckner and attended by Mr. and Mrs. Everett Beckner of Lethbridge, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McLean of Calgary, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Beckner of Parkland, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Beckner of High River and their respective families. Sgt. Beckner has been transferred from Lethbridge to Camp Borden and Kenneth McLean is on his last furlough before being transferred to Peterboro, Ontario.

The crops are suffering severely for lack of rain and unless the present excessive heat and dry winds are alleviated by a substantial rainfall the yield will be considerably reduced.

A small but interested audience attended the meeting held in connection with the C.C.F. campaign. The meeting was addressed by Rudy Kolkas and O. E. Wobick of Barons. Mr. V. J. Bertrand of Milo occupied the chair.

Ray and Mrs. Peterson are having more than their share of bad luck. About a month ago their daughter Muriel was compelled to undergo an operation for appendicitis and now Bill, a son, is also a patient at the Vulcan hospital for the same cause.

Mr. Ben Dann and son Bobby left for a plane trip to Watford, Ontario. They will spend a month there visiting Mr. Dann's father and other friends and relatives. There should be no difficulty after the war in selling the western provinces the idea of travelling by air as it seems to be already deeply implanted.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Wellman have moved into their new farm residence formerly owned by the O'Totts. Up to the present they have been renting in our district since coming from Champion. The Wellmans are a real asset to our district and their host of friends welcome them as permanent residents.

As the Provincial Government has now provided district home economists to serve the women of Alberta, it was decided to have a talk arranged by the director of the district who is stationed at Calgary on the subject of interior decorating. The first lesson in Eating for Health was given. This is a course provided by the Department of Extension at Edmonton.

We have no axe to grind personally nor do we belong to that much maligned class known as landlords but there is one situation that has us baffled. Everywhere in the cities there is a permanent howl about the inability of finding a place to live. What is the matter with living in a small town? In this village there are a half dozen good residents crying for tenants. It would seem to me that this would be an ideal situation for the wife of some soldier overseas. Rents are cheap, overhead low, surroundings pleasant. Instead of being crowded where there is no room to swing a cat, and no cat, one can have an entire house to themselves. As for kids being welcome, a person who hasn't any is nearly ostracized as an undesirable citizen. Why, Lord love you, if the baby bonus becomes law, a reasonable sized family would pay the rent and the electric lights. It is true the small town cannot offer as many varieties of entertainment but people call each other by the first name and friendship becomes a warm and personal thing instead of a cold polite formality. In the cities one is so often an outsider looking on at other people's activities but in the small town you can be part and parcel of the social and business life and your ego is flattered by the knowledge that what you do, what you say and how you feel, really matters. As for space, we never could understand why anyone would content themselves with living in piano box of an apartment merely because water will run at the turn of a tap, with other crowded tenants above, below, and on each side of you. The little town offers practically all of God's great outdoors. Another thing, living in a little town helps one to restore or maintain some faith in humankind. One of the first things a city dweller who comes on the occasional visit, does upon his arrival, is to lock his car doors. Why do you know (burglars skip this) that about half the people here do not even lock their house doors at night. In fact in summing up, the difference between apartment-dwelling and living in a village appears to be the difference between living and merely existing.

HARVEST MACHINERY,
ITS ADJUSTMENT

Harvest machinery in southern Alberta consists mainly of the combine harvester. The most important adjustment on any combine is the speed of the cylinder. This should be changed with the adjustment provided and not by changing the tractor motor speed. The speed of both decks and cylinders should be checked carefully with a speed counter. With special crops such as peas, beans, mustard, etc., this is still more important and the cylinder's speed may even have to be changed between morning and afternoon to take care of weather conditions. For average work the sieves should be level hence on power take-off machines the height of the tractor hitch will be important.

For adjustments on any particular machine the instruction book is the best guide or bulletins may be had from any Dominion Experimental Station or District Agriculturist.

The swather is used only in crops which cannot be straight combined. Many of these have been home-made from discarded binders, etc., and are quite satisfactory. Swaths may be turned using the swather and pick-up attachment or with a side delivery rake.

The problem of saving straw from the combine is becoming more important with many farmers. Where a tractor or truck mounted sweep is available this may be used quite satisfactorily. In other cases various types of straw carriers have been mounted on the combine itself and information concerning these may be had from the Dominion Experimental Station at Lethbridge.

It should be again emphasized that, all harvesting machinery should be checked carefully and worn parts ordered at the earliest possible opportunity so as to ensure that they will be ready for harvest.

ONE MAN'S INCOME IS ANOTHER MAN'S OUTGO...

If rising prices and costs were allowed to keep pushing each other up, inflation would be unavoidable. That's what inflation is—a panic rise in prices—with money losing its value and confusion everywhere. To prevent inflation, a ceiling has been set on prices and profits,—wages and salaries have been controlled.

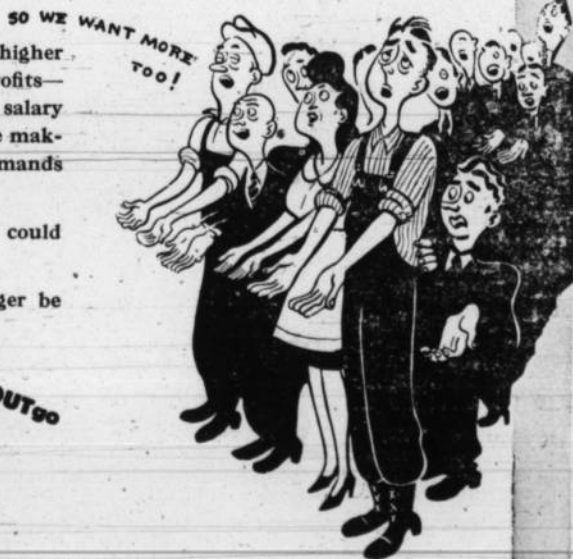

If one person demands higher prices—another higher profits—another a higher wage or salary—soon everybody would be making the same demands—demands on everyone else.

Then costs of production could not be controlled.

The ceiling could no longer be held.

Living costs would go up—

Income OUTGO
and INCOME
begin their frantic rise.
